WILDLIFE SAFETY

The close presence of humans can cause wildlife to alter their behavior and even displace wildlife from their historical habitats over time.

- Spring wildlife closures of the Burnt Mountain area and trails occur at a time when elk cows are having their calves.
- It is critical that these areas remain undisturbed.
- If humans are present during this delicate time, the elk cows may feel threatened and flee the area.
- If the calves have to move locations during their vulnerable first weeks, they are more likely to be preyed upon.
- Calf survival is vital to sustaining elk populations in the area.
- Closure dates are in line with the snowline receding uphill as temperatures warm.

Not only do these closures benefit elk, but all other wildlife who are nurturing their offspring and need sanctuary from human activity.

HIKING TRAIL CLOSURES: JUNE 21-JUNE 28
